

New Youth Detention Centre will benefit Gungahlin

Hindmarsh, a leading construction, development and property company will project manage the ACT's new $40m Youth Detention Center.

The new centre will be established in Gungahlin and construction is due to commence in April 2007, with completion planned for June 2008.

The Centre's character will be similar to that of a secondary college. The design is an assemblage of small scale buildings forming a campus-style environment. There will be variation in the colour and texture of materials, enhancing the visual integration of the Centre into the broader landscape.
